HEALTH

"I don't think we could keep house without Thedford's Black-draught. We have used it in the family for over two years with the best of results. I have not had a doctor in the house for that length of time. It is a doctor in itself and always ready to make a person well and happy."—JAMES HALL, Jacksonville, Ill.

Because this great medicine relieves stomach pains, frees the constipated bowels and invigorates the torpid liver and weakened kidneys.

No Doctor

is necessary in the home where Thedford's Black-Draught is kept. Families living in the country, miles from any physician, have been kept in health for years with this medicine as their only doctor. Thedford's Black-Draught cures biliousness, dyspepsia, colds, chills and fever, bad blood, headaches, diarrhoea, constipation, colic and almost every other ailment because the stomach, bowels liver and kidneys so nearly control the health.

"Reub" Saw the Big Fair and Tells About It.

MT. AUBURN, ILL.—Unlike a certain ancient chronicler of fame who was gathered to his fathers after only a brief perspective of the land of milk and honey, I was driven behind a span of high steppers, creditable to blue grass and turnpikes, over miles of as rich farm lands as the State boasts, and not an acre that is rated at less than $100—much that can not be bought for twice that amount.

Corn and oats are the principal crops.
Comparatively little fodder is saved.
Occasionally alternate shock-rows indicate that landlord or tenant finds market for more than the grain.

Very rarely had there been an entire crop of corn cut and shocked along the miles and miles I traversed by vehicle and rail. From Cincinnati to St. Louis, across Indiana and Illinois, the semi-occasional wheat crops vary from stages of seedling to luxuriant green which covers the ground as seen from level of a car window. At but two or three points does the topography resemble Kentucky. Black oak or black jack appeared to be the predominant variety of timber, with occasionally a dense undergrowth of bushes. Streams which we catalogue as creeks, are often rivers of the West. Along Sangamon river, which is prominently associated with the immortal Kentucky-Illinois patriot-philanthropist, Honest Abe, I saw levees which reclaim wide bottoms of otherwise valueless lands, now rated at maximum prices—perennial cornfields.

Elevations which would be classed with big Indian mounds here, are dignified in name by the prefix Mt.

Farm residences, barns and other buildings are framed and noted more for substantiality than ornamentation.
A wind mill is almost as common a part of farm equipment as cisterns are here.
Hedges and wire fencing. Now the country thoroughfares are a delight to every variety of travel, from tramp, up the gamut to automobile, which is an exclamation to farmers. On Sunday I met families in two horse wagons.

Farmers were designated whose assessments required six figures and their garb and unobtrusiveness would not distinguish them from their tenants.
By the way, of the thousands and thousands I saw, not a single manifestation of a "drop too much" was seen. At this place I met a native of Lincoln county, Mr. Silas Russell, who located in Illinois, in young manhood, covering a period of almost two generations. The venerable A. M. Feland and patriarch of John Bright are the only survivors of the vast numbers of contemporaries he mentioned in three hours' reminiscences of old Lincoln. Many prominent families of his day are without a representative in name, some probably, extinct, illustrating the momentary obliterations of a few short years—so great a part of life's limit.

Of the exposition I can only generalize. Those who visited Philadelphia, Chicago and Buffalo; had little difference save in a few new fields of invention and development; otherwise advances in detail and degree. The rural sight-seer, not familiar with city life, is bewildered and overwhelmed when merged into the crush of depot and other crowds.

The jam at a circus ticket wagon and tent is suggested to a hayseed. During an hour and a half's wait at a point overlooking the throngs at the main exit after 5 o'clock, at which hour all the exhibition buildings are closed, there was no diminution of the rushing streams, and a stroll about the illuminated thoroughfares encountered the same crush in concentrated volume.
The universality of courteous response to every query, whether by official or civilian, was refreshing and the superintendent of every exhibit I heard questioned was as conspicuous for patience and courtesy as for apparent cheerfulness in enlightening the curious. Not a single discourteous response did I hear given even the most irrelevant question. The policemen are phe-nomenally gracious, and in but one instance did I hear a uniformed individual declare inability to inform—probably a member of a brass band.

Placards announcing 25 cent meals, invariably steered me against an itemized list of dishes which were priced dreadfully high and necessitated adjustment of the study cap and use of pencil and T. blot to figure the possibility of the limit. Usually the generous size of a steak would be enough for two and where two or more order different dishes and share, a beautiful meal can be gotten for 25 or 30 cts. An individual will find it impossible to enjoy a hearty and satisfactory meal for that price if hungry. Rarely heard of a bed at less than $1 each, even if occupied by two. At a congested hotel we were shown a collection of cots in a lumber-room like dormitory, with about as much bedding as an Igorrote would demand and he wears only a smile of contentment—when the weather bureau doesn't forecast a freeze—price $1.

A visit to the Kentucky building at noon resulted in meeting seven acquaintances. At no other place did I chance on a face which even strikingly resembled any one I know. The registers were in such demand I had to crowd in or omit that formality. All the pens but one had presumably been appropriated as souvenirs.

Ubiquitous and gracious Bob Hughes had time to spray my circle with one of his inspiring smiles, when one of my nieces, and his cousin, presented me.
Kentucky is, and deservedly, proud of her State building and its officials. Do not fail to call.

Two little maidens entertained a crowded reception room with several catchy songs and sang well, eliciting encore after encore. How I wished one or more of our girls could have electrified that crowd in culmination of the entertainment. My experience suggests advice that tourists remember that in validation of tickets they are in a surging crowd without elbow sweep and a rigid inspection of the reproduction of signature made in confirmation you are purchaser and user of ticket presented, is made. Read provision of ticket.

Buildings are not open before 9 A. M.
About half hour of intramural will encircle the grounds for a dime. Automobiles 25 cents. There are 17 intramural stations and you can spend $1.70 for the circuit by getting off at each in turn. Hope you will chance on L. P.
Ryan's car. The illuminations are gorgeous and profuse. The Midway at Chicago is the Pike of St. Louis and I can prove that I wasn't on the Pike and didn't enter a single show on the fair grounds, and your uncle Reuben has never been classed with saints.

Least incredulous accuse me of lying and the credulous apprehend I have secured passage with Dowle in emulation of Elijah be it known of old that I occupied a front seat in baldhead row at the Olean in unqualified enjoyment of Kiraity's spectacular Louisiana Par-chase and ballet accessories. Tom Robinson urged me not to miss it and he knows a good thing.

Any of our sculptors who hesitate about going are assured they can select from more than half a hundred models one that faithfully reproduced in Paris would relegate the original Venus de Milo to second place, compared by the American standard. Price of seat, one dollar.

I have assurances that the Boer War and Battle of Santiago are excitingly realistic in every detail of battles. Attractions by dozens and dozens.

It is improbable that another Exposition of such magnitude will again soon be so conveniently and cheaply accessible. A hostler and economist can get through on $25 to $30.

Later.—Certainly we are especial favorites of the Fates, for our train was held two hours at Decatur, Ill., to await a delayed section, and we reached Cincinnati in ample time to wait seven hours for Capt. Ben McGraw's special; and who ever rode with Ben that does not welcome even disappointment that assures that pleasure?

Madam Hayseed was of the return party and refused to permit Reub to handle her ticket, so fearful of his getting lost or taking wrong train, and never drew a breath of comfort till safe at home. When I slipped out of the station at Cincinnati she felt a sure widow, till I got back on arm of lovely laesie, met on 4th street, who flashed a shower of sunshine throughout waiting rooms for a few minutes of the dull waiting. Accompanying us to exit she didn't let go till she landed at home.
